barbed wire that surrounded the Soviet concentration camp in which I was held. In this letter I appealed to those people who were fighting for peace and urged them to use the following slogans during their demonstrations:

1. Peace and humanism are inseparable.

2. Peace should be fought for in the name of humanism and not in the name of politics.

3. A society has the moral right to speak of peace for all humanity only if it has a humane face and humane laws.

I believe that these three slogans are still applicable today, and I ask all those individuals and organizations that share my view to respond to my appeal. ■
